House grabs 2 AFP spies

Military execs still no-shows in probe of leftists' slays

By Michael Lina Ulloa

TWO MILITARY AGENTS were detained by the House committee on human rights yesterday for alleged spying after they were caught taking videos and pictures of its hearing on political killings.

Sgt. Julius Sereno and Sgt. Gilda Calayog of the Armed Forces of the Philippines Civil Reconnaissance Service (ARF-CRS) were held for about two hours by House security for allegedly documenting the proceedings.

Defense and military officers watched the hearings for a second time, and the irony of the presence of two military agents—both in civilian clothes—in their midst was not lost on the congressmen.

"The problem with the AFP is they ignore congressional inquiries and instead send spies," said party-list Rep. Simeon Domingo, leader of Reyes Mesa who has lost 118 of its members to so-called military "death squads" since 2001.

Manila Rep. Bismarck Alarcon, committee chair, was flustered.

"This is not right. This is an insult to the institution. This is a breach of trust. The military should respect Congress. I'm warning to get proved," Alarcon said reprovers.

It took an apology from Commander Amable Timanilla, chief of the ARF-CRS, for Sereno and Calayog to be released.

Saying the AFP had never before its committee's summons, Alarcon said

'Bata' Reyes pockets P25-M pool prize

PHILIPPINE BILLIARDS ACE ERNIE "BATA" REYES won the biggest prize in his sport on Tuesday, winning $500,000 (P25.3 million) after taking the International Pool Tour 2006 World Open 8-Ball championship at the Grand Sierra Resort and Casino in Reno, Nevada.

The 32-year-old former World 9-Ball champion from Angeles City beat American Rodney "Rocky" Morris, 4-6, in a showdown between two veterans from a starting field of 200 players representing 27 countries.

Trailing 2-4 at the start, the man known to the world of pool as "The Magician" reversed his game to win six of the last eight racks. He averaged his 6.7 loss to Morris a day earlier in the final stages of the $5-million tournament.

Reyes, who made it to the title shot as No. 2 in the world's behind the Americans, reached the 160 in 7-5 as he closed up after Morris scratched on the break.

He clinched it with a run-out after the No. 35 ball sent the No. 2 ball flying into the right pocket on the break.

The explosive victory came two weeks after Reyes and his close friend, Francisco "Django" Bustamante, captured the inaugural staging of the World Cup of Pool over Morris and his American partner, Earl Strickland, in New South Wales.

Reyes and Django split the $40,000 first prize in the World Cup. Reyes also picked up $45,800 in July by placing fourth in the IPT World Amateur Open.

This time, Reyes captured a prize worth

Solons push extradition of Bolante

By Juliet Labog-Javalina

SENATORS YESTERDAY CALLED ON the United States to extradite former Agriculture Undersecretary Jocelyn Bolante to face charges in connection with the alleged use of P720 million in American funds for President Manzanillo's reelection in 2004.

Saying it was ironic that it took a foreign country to take Bolante to task for the plunder of public funds, Sen. Ramon Magsaysay said the Commission should take the case and start filing charges against Bolante.

"It's what you call justice catching up. If justice in the Philippines is slow and doesn't [work], justice in the US shows that it's working," Magsaysay said. "It is an irony that it is paradoxical that it shows that everything is globalized. If there is justice in the Philippines, it will catch up wherever the [United States] goes."

A Chicago immigration court is scheduled to hear Bolante's plea for political asylum in the United States on Wednesday (Thursday in Manila) reportedly by

Divided world remembers 9/11 terror attacks

US PRESIDENT George W. Bush (center) and First Lady Laura Bush are assisted by a military honor guard as they lay wreaths on the reflecting pool at "Ground Zero."

TOKYO—A DIVIDED WORLD REMEMBERED the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks, with allies in the war on terror renewing their resolve to fight terrorism and militant Islamism. Washington's response as ineffective and pledging continued resistance.

Five years after terrorist wrought death from clear skies in America, remembrances were held in Japan, Australia, Ireland, South Korea, Thailand and Indonesia.

For its part, al-Qaida released a video tribute to the planning of the attacks on New York and Washington, which killed nearly 3,000 people, while the terror network's No. 2 leader, Ayman al-Zawahiri, called on Muslims to step up their resistance against the United States.

Monday's outpouring of emotion reflected an international landscape vastly changed since terrorist hijacked their airliners in 2001, cranking two into New York's World Trade Center, one into the Pentagon and another into a Pennsylvania field.

The bomb attacks claimed 2,973 lives, stunned the world, and unleashed the US military's search from Afghanistan to Iraq.

On Monday US President George W. Bush and his wife, Laura, stood in solemn silence after laying wreaths at the twin towers of the World Trade Center, once scorned. He later pledged "unwavering resolve" to remember the losses of Sept. 11.

On Monday, Bush was scheduled to visit the two other attack sites—Shanksville, Pennsylvania, where 40 people were killed when a jet crashed into the ground, and the Pentagon in Arlington, Virginia—just outside Washington—where 183 died.

Jolo folk rail against 1906 US killings

JOLO, ISLAND—AS AMERICANS REFLECTED on the horror of Sept. 11, 2001, villagers on this Western Mindanao island sought an apology for the killings by the US cavalry 10 years ago and asked visiting American troops to leave.

A faction on Islam and democracy purely organized by the US since deployment over the weekend on Jolo island, stirred resistance to those violent events, which happened in two starkly different months but which continue to affect a raging conflict.

A US military commander, however, urged the villagers to move beyond the past.

"I think it's just important that we not be held hostage by history," US Army Gen. James Lindert, the top American commander in the Philippines, told villagers in Jolo.

Under outlined US humanitarian projects across the impoverished island, a faction of Abu Sayyaf bandits who have been linked to al-Qaida.

"I won't stay here and make an excuse for something that happened 100 years ago," he said. "We only do mean to do good things to the people on this island."

Despite US attempts to move on, the events of 1906, where hundreds of Jolo villagers were killed by US soldiers, may be complicating Washington's ability to prevent terrorism from using Islamic Mindanao as a base for attacks and terrorist training.

US troops, who are barred by Philippine law from engaging in combat, have been building roads and schools, digging wells, and providing medical services in an effort to win hearts and minds on pre-

Where there's smoke there's corruption?

By Norman Borja-Garcia

IF LAND TRANSPORTATION officials are strictly enforcing vehicle emission tests, how come there are still so many smoky tailpipes on the road, and are public buses emitting so alarming levels in Metro Manila?

The question is being asked by Ombudsman Alvaro Duterte. Duterte also has ordered an investigation into possible corruption in the issuance of certificates of vehicle compliance to motor vehicle owners and the registration of their vehicles by the Land Transportation Office.

The country's chief graftbuster said the smoky some vehicles emit daily dirty discharges by LTO personnel, possibly in collusion with Department of Trade and Industry-registered emission testing centers.

A statistic is required to get a CAC from these accredited testing centers before their vehicles can be registered by the LTO.

"Have motor vehicle testing vehicles are able to ensure their registration?" said Duterte, adding that she has received many complaints about vehicles on the road as the roadways to wait from her office.

"Smoky tailpipes is one of the causes of air pollution, which is a hazard to general health," Duterte said in a statement.

"The most common smoky tailpipes are passenger buses but powered by 15 tons, delivery vans or trucks, and private vehicles," she added.

Under the Clean Air Act, the settable level of particulate in the air at any given point is 200 ug/m³. However, data from the Department of Environment and Natural Resources Environmental Management Bureau showed that for July this year, the MRF Pasig-Talavera, the highest registered level of air pollution ranging from 200 ug/m³ to 401 ug/m³.

Address the root cause of leakage scandal

AFTER CLARICE COMPIRES FOR A swift, but not thorough, resolution to the mounting language controversy, we call on colleagues in the nursing and education professions, as well as to concerned officials and organizations, to address the issue beyond the language that the quality of services has gone down. With the higher number of producers, we may find an over-supply of services, but there is, in reality, a shortage in experienced talents. Such a situation has led to further consolidation of business.

I had hoped that the ethical/hospital would induce their nurses to stay by improving their compensation system and placing in place a retention package. Instead they did just after a year or two, in spite of hospital rule and therefore so many new graduate nurses, the situation worsened. It filled up required positions because a common thing which led to an increase in nurse-patient ratio in hospital began recruiting "volunteer" nurses who could for the experience to fill the vac.

The leakage was bound to happen with so many schools trying to improve their gaming rate through any means without addressing the very thing they should be doing—the personal improvement of their own system in being about optimum education. This was brought about, the predators

Illegal structures back on sidewalk

THE OUTSIDE-THE-BOX APPROACH of Fernando Rosendi and the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority under his aegis of Metro Manila's problems has impressed me, although I do disagree with some of MRDA's initiatives.

The moving force of billions, for example, is commendable. However, recently saw a picture of this hospital based close to the MRDA office. This reminded me of another MRDA initiative that I fully support: the removal of illegal structures on sidewalks.

While they were out of a depot in Saint Rufus Street, between Royal Avenue and Saint Andrew Street, I was very impressed when they cleared the sidewalk across the depot of illegal kumbuka (cannabis) and shanties some time last year. However, I was shocked to find out that even after the clearing operation, illegal structures were back, only this time, there are more of them to cover the entire length of the block.

From across, the walls and ceilings are painted with the Mafatih's shade of blue. This not only means two things: either these structures are "legal" because they carry the official colors of Mafatih, or the paint used was stolen from MAFIC.

None of all diseases are now being put up on the opposite side of the road. I am very interested to find out the real story behind these ugly diseases. Do they have the blessings of certain high officials of Allah?

LOS BAFOS, LINGGA—A FOREIGN private pest control company has been invited to help the coconut and banana industry and has also visited over 30 other towns and surrounding places, a researcher from the University of the Philippines at Los Bafos (UPLB) said yesterday.

Dr. Arlene G. L. is an entomologist at the UPLB, said the new pest, identified as the half-scented moth (HSM), has been damaging thousands of economically important plants and trees like coconut, banana and other fruit-bearing trees in the five provinces of Calabarzon and several towns in the Ilocos region.

He said the infestation of this type of moth, locally called "lalapa", was also reported in Singapore and Malaysian peninsulas, specifically in Terengganu and Kelantan.

"We recently received a sample of larvae collected by the pest from Terengganu and we were able to confirm that HSM had indeed infested all farming areas," he told the Inquirer.

Aside from coconut and banana, HSMs are also damaging rice, pineapple, guava, and apple, citrus, avocado, mango, among other fruits.

The current infestation in the country, who are still undergoing the damage effects of the palm leaf beetle, will have much of the burden brought by the sudden rise of population of HSM.

"Unfortunately this year could undermine our sustainable green coconut industry," he said.

IN THE KNOW

Small, dark, scale-like insects (likely the HSM larvae) infesting a plant.

THE BURY COCONUT-BEATING ALIEN COCONUTS are a pest among coconut, coffee palm and other fruit and ornamental plants. It damages the crop by feeding directly from the plant's sap, producing sticky honeydew, which attracts ants and other insects, which eventually destroy the plants. This damage causes leaves to wilt and gradually turn brown. In fact, it is called a "honeydew" pest.

The most vulnerable are coconut trees.

Gov't can now take over Naia 3

By Joseph B. Uy, Gil C. Calasaguen Jr. and Christine D. Arnedillo

IT'S OFFICIAL

The government can now take over the much-bulldozed Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 after its partial payment of P3 billion was accepted yesterday by the builder, the Philippine International Air Terminal Co. Inc. (Platco).

Judge Jesus Magpas of the Fifth Regional Trial Court issued a writ of possession for Naia 3 to the government late in the afternoon, after the land bank of the Philippines handed to the court a winninger's check for P3,002,125,000 payable to Platco.

By agreement of the parties, the writ of possession shall be subject to resumption to state the check in favor of (Platco) is not honored, the government could now begin to prepare for Naia 3.

The check was received by Platco lawyer Eduardo de los Angeles, who said that with the initial payment, the government could now begin to prepare for Naia 3.

"As long as the just compensation will be fully paid, as in the case of this writ, the government will be able to operate the airport," De los Angeles said upon receiving the writ.

Platco went to court to demand "just compensation" of P3 billion (roughly P27.36 billion) for the government school to settle for P322 million (about P3.6 billion). In 2003, the House court ordered the government to pay Platco a down payment of P3 billion.

This was upheld by the Supreme Court under the case. De los Angeles said Platco was willing to negotiate with the government on the matter of just compensation.

In an interview with the Inquirer, yesterday, Magpas said just compensation would be determined by the three-man commission the court appointed last year.

He said he would oversee the three commissioners—in Peralta, Bulacan, and Marikina, Subic Bay and Aklan.

into the airport—today to begin the process of evaluating the value of the airport facility.

"The government now fully accepts Naia 3 after it has fully accepted its obligation to Platco," he said.

Platco, however, said that where he was with President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, President Aquino would not pay P3 billion for the airport. He said that the government's control of Naia 3 was a new development in the airport's history.

He said he was going with a large sum of money but this is a reasonable price compared to what we are not to pay now or fully start its operation," he said.

He said he was not sure if the government's control of Naia 3 was a new development in the airport's history.

Wild ride turns tragic for teenager

Girl dies after falling off seat in amusement park

By Jocelyn S. Uy

A 15-year-old girl accidentally fell to her death from a height of 20 feet while riding in one of the attractions at a Pampanga City amusement park at around 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

The victim was identified as Rachel Gato Nolas, a resident of Dagupan River in Tuba, Pampanga. She fell from one of the big boats on the PMS River Ride, one of the attractions at Star City in the Cultural Center of the Philippines complex on Buena Vista.

Starliner Musical, Subic Road, told the police the victim suddenly fell away and went up-front but was still there when the ride's big boat passed.

"The victim was thrown out of the boat and fell in the ground," investigator PMSI Reynald de Aguilera said in his report.

Nolas was rushed to the San Juan de Dios Hospital where Dr. Reginaldo Pantoja declared her dead on arrival at 1:44 a.m. yesterday. Her injuries, according to Aguilera, included a fractured left thigh, lacerations on her chin and a concussion on her chest.

The police have yet to determine whether or not the establishment should be held liable for Nolas' accident as the incident is still under investigation.

In a statement, Star Trek Co., which manages the amusement park, said that "the accident that occurred is not in any way the result of any malfunction or safety issue."

It added that it was still gathering details about the incident.

"Star City deeply regrets the incident and sends the victim's family its full sympathies," the company said.

By Of Top and Bay and San Diego Jr.

A QUEBON CITY TRIBUNAL HAS found probable cause to issue TV and movie star Claudine Barretto the libel charges against her.

Parents want 'interim board' appointed to run IS Manila

By Elizabeth S. Long

STUDENT LEADERS of the International School Manila (ISM) in Fort Bonifacio, Taguig City plan to install an incentive board to reward the efforts of the school after successfully having members of the board of trustees to resign last week.

A statement from a coalition "non-paying members" of the school and the internet board "will work as a non-partisan coalition of the citizen until an election can be held and a new set of officers can be installed."

The resignation of members of the board, headed by Graciano Gilbray Jr. of Integra, had prompted a vote of no confidence as well as legal action to ouster them by stakeholders who claimed to have gathered the required number of votes to force their exit of office.

"Over 940 out of 1,200 families of the HSA community have signed petitions for the removal of the board of trustees, joined by 228 faculty and staff, as well as all seven members of the leadership team in the school."

The union began after the board of directors fired superintendent David Thar two weeks ago. The board has declined to discuss the reasons for the move, citing a policy that banned them. Ten weeks after board members, however, a board insider told the business that reports about Thar's being convicted of BEM by armed men and the taking of his car were "false and malicious."

An ESM parent, who requested that his name be withheld because he was not authorized to speak for the group, asserted that the interim ban—if approved by the group—will remain only until May 2007 when the next regular board elections are scheduled.

There will be a clear message that those that served in the Israeli armed forces are for the 2007 treaty," the report said in an e-mail sent to the business. It said the law its heart will be composed of "high-ranking individuals" principally from "sustaining members" of the community. Sustaining members refer to "cooperative and institutions that have supported it in significant ways since the school opened."

The proposed board include Charon Philippine country chair Randy Johnson, Caring Philippines country officer Sergio Wides, United Nations Community Assistance director Byung Hyeon Im, UN Technology Inc. president and CEO Bruce G. Swadish, Ambassador in Manila Marko Markovic, Bank of the Philippine Islands president Joseph Montecino II, American Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines president Fredrick M. Santos, Defense Industry Program Manager Delgado, US Embassy deputy chief of mission Paul W. Ames and UN director general for External and Non-Sovereignized Colonies Juan Alvarado.

In the e-mailed message, the 11M parents added that the group had not yet decided on whether or not to raise their issue.

US welcomes Iran freeze of uranium enrichment

VIENNA, AUSTRIA—A SENIOR US ENVOY ON MONDAY welcomed progress in talks meant to defuse a standoff over Iran's nuclear defiance, but said the UN Security Council still intended to "move forward" toward sanctions if Tehran refused to freeze uranium enrichment.

Gregory L. Schmitt, the chief delegate to the International Atomic Energy Agency talks, spoke of "a resolution that is a ready to consider" if Iran does not freeze enrichment. "It is a resolution that is a ready to consider" if Iran does not freeze enrichment.

"It is encouraging that progress was made," Schmitt told reporters before the IAEA. "The fact that Iran has agreed to freeze enrichment is a positive step. Mahathir: Gov't bribing party mates to defeat him

KUALA LUMPUR, FORMER MALAYSIAN PRIME MINISTER Mahathir Mohamad on Monday accused the government of bribing ruling party members to defeat him in party polls, and warned that his "big mouth" would not stop criticizing the current leader and his family.

In a speech to his long-time supporters, Mahathir said that he was "bribed" by the government to defeat him in party polls. He said that the government was "bribing" party members to defeat him and that he was "bribed" by the government to defeat him.

Mahathir will still be linked to the campaign as a former party president, but the right to give a speech is typically limited to current top officials and delegates representing their constituents in 100 local divisions.

Despite the election loss, "I am not going to stop exposing the government's misdeeds," Mahathir earlier told a few dozen supporters at his office. "The way to stop me is to let me speak a big mouth. I am going to use this big mouth."

Evolution, environment and weight gain

Are we

THE RECENT INTERNATIONAL Congress on Obesity (Metabolic evolution and the environment for the "global obesity pandemic")

As reported by Reuters News Agency, Kim Whitlock, co-chair of the conference, said, "We know this [obesity] is not about genetics—it is the interaction of heredity and environment."

In his book, "The Nine Strands of Weight Loss," Dr. David Knochbaum says, "We are fighting against biological survival mechanisms that have allowed the human race to stay alive through famine and other environmental disasters."

These mechanisms include the ability to store fat as efficiently as possible and to lower the metabolic rate when food is not available, a predisposition to avoid large meals, and a built-in preference for fatty and sweet food.

These in-born mechanisms turned the human race into an organism where food was scarce. However, in today's world, these same genetic survival instincts are now our downfall.

"Our bodies are still the same as our primitive ancestors but we live in an environment where a fast-food meal now has 1,000 calories."

In the human race, then, doctors do not believe that biology is our destiny because we are smarter than our biology. We say we eat more now because we cannot eat less.

Understanding why our bodies are designed to behave as we do is not meant to give you a convenient excuse not to lose weight but to help you be more successful in controlling your weight.

If you are overweight, you are not a "metabolic" person, a phobic, or someone with poor willpower. Rather you are a normal human being with a body whose needs go unmet.

WELL AND GOOD

TIM JANN

To let go of negative self-blaming attitudes and devise a meaningful action plan to deal with those biological forces.

Sweet tooth

Knochbaum gives three reasons why we are heavily born with a sweet tooth.

"When we are hungry, sugar provides the quick energy... When hormones or other signals are starving, they consistently show high blood glucose levels for very sweet foods. Thus, again, does the body's inclination to satisfying extreme hunger and food deprivation quickly and efficiently with sugar.

"Sweet foods are safe foods. Can you think of any examples of wild fruits or berries or vegetables that are sweet and also desirable to eat?"
